

On Broadway

Vavoom is moving from the salon to the stage as the exclusive beauty sponsor of Legally Blonde the Musical. The play, which opened to rave reviews in April, is based on the hit film that starred Reese Witherspoon as the lovable, natural blonde Elle Woods. The Broadway cast sports a range of styles that Vavoom is famous for—from sexy and voluminous to sleek and shiny. Make sure to check out paulettessalon.com for information about the looks in the musical, a stylist-client sweepstakes, stylist tips and much more. —C.W.

Lip Service

SIMPLY ORGANIC is branching out. The company, known for its salon-only, totally organic haircare products, also offers organic skincare, candles and soaps. We especially love the USDA-certified organic lip balm, made with sunflower seed oil, beeswax, aloe and coconut. simplyorganicbeauty.com —C.W.

The Ocean Within

Recently making its debut in salons and spas, Kanreki is a new anti-aging skincare line from C'Watre Oceanic Skin Care. Consisting of a deep-cleansing wash, remineralizing antioxidant tonic, smoothing cream and firming serum, the Japanese line uses ocean water as its base ingredient and also a patent-pending technology that allows for the accelerated transfer of minerals from the sea water into the skin. cwatre.com —C.W.

Tooling Around

If you're a stylist who's stuck in a creative rut, maybe what you need is a new set of tools. We've found the perfect pair: the new patent-pending Root Control and Nalu Waver from R Session Tools, a company recently established by Frank Rizzieri and Kevin Ryan, two of the most innovative stylists working in editorial and fashion today. They decided to get together and create the very tools they felt were missing from their repertoire. Root Control (left) combines the benefits of a ceramic heating barrel with the functionality of a pressing comb to leave hair silky straight and smooth, while the Nalu Waver allows you to beget either defined curls or loose waves. Both tools are made of Brazilian Tourmaline and Micro Silver Ag, an antibiotic substance that prevents bacteria from spreading. rsessiontools.com —C.W.

